THE WORLD OF SOCIETY

BEAUTIFUL WEDDING THIS MORNING AT ST. MATTHEW'S.

Miss Ivy Langham Becomes the Bride of Lieutenant Commander Faramond.

ter of the Baroness Speck-Sternburg, the German ambassadress, to Lieutenant Commander, the Vicomte de Faramond de Lafajole, naval attache of the French embassy, took place at St. Matthew's Church at 11 o'clock today. To seat the distinguished company and to attend the couple to the sanctuary, the following diplomatic confreres of the bride groom acted as ushers: Capt. Fournier, military attache; Prince de Bearn, attache of the French embassy; Major von Etzel, military attache; Herr von Verdy du Venois, third secretary; Prince Hatzfeldt and Lieut. Martin, attaches of the German embassy Col. Raspopow, military attache of the Russian embassy; Mr. Percy Wyndham, first secretary of the British embassy, and Miss Langham.

Count Hoyos, attache of the Austro-Hungarian embassy. The witnesses for the bridegroom were the French ambassador, M. Jusserand, and Baron de Felzins, uncle of Lieutenant Commander Faramond. For the bride the witnesses were her brother-in-law, Baron von Sternburg, and her uncle, in-law, Baron von Sternburg, and her uncle, Mr. Arthur Langham of Kentucky.

Owing to an engagement made some time ago the absence of Cardinal Gibbons in Canada prevented his officiating at the ceremony, as he had been invited to do by the couple. The officiating priest was therefore the rector of St. Matthew's, Rev. Thomas S. Lee. When the bride entered the church she was escorted by the German ambassador, her attendants being her sister, Miss Violet Langham, and a cousin of the bridegroom, Mile. Yvonne de Felzins. Vicomte Charles de Chambrun of the French embassy was best man.

As the bride's family is in deep mourning the wedding was exclusively an official function. Besides the immediate families of the bride and bridegroom, which include, of course, the personnel of the German and French embassies, the only persons invited to witness the ceremony were Mrs. and Miss Roosevelt, the Secretary Mrs. and Miss Roosevelt, the Secretary of State and Mrs. Hay, Admiral and Mrs. Dewey, the members of the diplomatic corps, the Secretary of the Navy and a number of naval officers on duty at Washington, who officially represented the Amer-ington, who officially represented the American navy.

A nuptial mass followed the marriage ceremony and was celebrated by Rev. Father Buckey. The wedding marches were played during the entrance of the bridal party and again at the close of the mass, during which the organ was heard from time to time in a coff that. from time to time in a soft key. The sanctuary was elaborately decorated with palms and foliage plants, great bouquets of snowballs and other white blossoms. The altar railing was covered with sprays of bridal wreath and asparagus vines and numbers of lighted tapers were on the altar.

The bride and Baron von Sternburg entered the church by the side entrance and the newly-married couple left by the same way, thus disappointing a small party of sightseers who had gathered about the front entrance on Rhode Island avenue, where a canopy extended down to the carriage step. Liveried servants of the German embassy and several good-natured policemen manned both entrances. As no cards of admission were necessary, every one who cared to do so had the privilege of witnessing the latest international was ding.

The church was about half filled, the in-

The church was about half filled, the invited guests having seats in the front pews of the three aisles, the first pew being reserved on the right for Mrs. Roosevelt, and nearby were seated the French ambassador and Mme. Jusserand. The mother of the bride, Mrs. Langham, handsomely gowned in black lace with a small bonnet, and Baroness Sternburg, in mauve crepe and a large black hat, were in the opposite front pew, the German ambassador taking his place beside his wife after the marriage ceremony.

couple had seats in the sanctuary with priedieux in front of them.

The bride wore a soft, fluffy dress of gray crepe, the skirt half covered with ruffles and gathered puffs. The bodice had full sleeves that fell over the wrist ruffles of cream lace and a deep collar of gray and fies and gathered puffs. The bodice had full sleeves that fell over the wrist ruffles of cream lace and a deep collar of gray and white lace. Her hat was of gray tulle trimmed with a gray ostrich feather that extended half way round it. She carried a white prayer book and a pearl rosary hung from her wrist. She wore no gloves.

Miss Violet Langham wore pale yellow lace and net, and a large hat, while Mile. Felzins was in blue lace and net, with a black hat trimmed in pale blue.

Mrs. Roosevelt wore a stylish dress of black and white chiffon with a black hat, and Miss Roosevelt, with a cream lace, wore a wide-brimmed black lace hat. After the bride and groom left the church Mrs. Roosevelt was escorted to the door by the ushers. Then a similar courtesy was shown the Secretary of State and Mrs. Hay and the admiral of the navy and Mrs. Dewey. Mrs. Hay was dressed in black and white and Mrs. Dewey was exquisitely gowned in the daintiest of white Valenciennes lace ruffled net with a touch of mauve about the bodice. Her toque was of lace and mauve ficwers.

Countess Cassini, in lace and a large white lace and green bows; Mme. Azpiroz, in black lace, and the young daughter of the Chinese minister, who was with her father, was dressed in a pale blue native costume. The Austrian ambassador, the Japanese minister, the Haitian minister, the Belgian minister were among other foreign notabilities present. The attendance of the younger members of the diplomatic corps was complete, and there were, therefore, more men than women among the witnesses to the ceremony.

The bride's presents were numerous and very beautiful, but she wore no jewels at the wedding.

All the coachmen and footmen on the carriages for the bride and relatives wore a white rose on their coats. The horses' heads were adorned with white ribbons, and there were white bows on the whips.

The bride of today is the third daughter of the late Charles Langham of Kentucky, who died recently in California. She was educated abroad, where her mother has spent much of her time of recent years. The three sisters have flower names, Lily Baroness Speck Sternburg, Violet and Ivy, now the Viscomtesse de Faramond. The younger sisters have traveled extensively in Europe and the east, and since their elder sister's marriage have divided each year between their mother and their sister's home wherever it happened to be. Last year Miss Violet Langham was here, and last fall, on her return to the south of Eu-rope to be with her mother, her younger sister came to enjoy Washington, and soon afterward met her fate in the person of the young naval attache of the French embassy. Their engagement was announced in the early spring, and but for the mourn-ing retirement of the family the ceremony of today would have been witnessed by a much larger company and the wedding festivities planned on an elaborate scale.

Vicomte de Faramond is a son of Count Louis Ferdinand de Lafajole, resident of Paris. His mother also survives. His elder brother is the Count Charles de Faramond

His uncle, Baron de Felzins of Toulouse, France, and Mile. de Felzins represented the family at the wedding.

A wedding breakfast followed at the imperial German embassy, when the health of the newly married couple was drunk with the enthusiasm that is so happy an with the enthusiasm that is so happy ar accompaniment when foreign customs are followed. Late this afternoon Commander de Faramond and his bride left for Atlantic City, where the brief interval before they sail for France will be spent.

Miss Alice T. Norris and Mr. J. William Ashe were married last evening at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Frank Enders, by Rev. Father Hannan of St. Martin's Church. The bride was beautifully dressed in point d'esprit over white taffeta, and carried a shower bouquet of bride roses and illies of the valley. Miss Marie Murray, her maid of honor, wore white slik mull. Mr. T. Shepherd was best man. The parlor was prettily decorated with flowers and palms. A reception followed before the departure of the couple for a trip to New York and Atlantic City. After June 5 Mr. and Mrs. Ashe will be at home at 1610 1st street.

The Russian ambassador and the Countess Marguerite Cassini entertained at dinner last night, when their guests were Miss Alice Roosevelt, the charge d'affaires of the Italian embassy and Countess Celere, the Countess Antonelli, Miss Josephine Boardman, Miss Isabelle May, the counselor of the Belgian legation, M. Charles Wauters; the Vicomte de Chambrun and the Prince de Bearn of the French em-bassy, Count Hoyos and Herr Rubido-Zichy of the Austrian embassy

The visit was greatly enjoyed by the sisters and the students, who entertained the members of the guild with classical music and pantonime. A good lunch was served, the young ladies, in college cap and gown acting as pretty "waiter girls." After luncheon the visitors were given an exhibition drill on the lawn by the little cadets of the semi-nary, which called forth much applause. On returning to Baltimore a car ride was taken through the burned district, and the ladies returned to Washington with many expressions of gratitude to the sisters of Mount St. Agnes for a day of real pleas-

JOHN R. LOWE

THUS. S. SERGEON.

KER. In loving remembrance of Mrs. EMILY E. BAKER, who died three years ago today, May 24, 1901. Roll on, oh, time, while still she rests; Her work on earth was all complete; And now, in perfect joy and peace, She walts for us at Jesus' feet.

BY HER HUSBAND AND DAUGHTER.
